Where You Can Roam and Your Mind Can Wander

Larger than Manhattan and located between Yellowstone and Glacier, Paws Up has everything a national park has except the congestion. You'll find it bustling with wildlife. Wild elk herds and deer meander across the plains. Songbirds dine on delicate huckleberries and bald eagles feast on creek-side snacks.

The legendary Blackfoot River winds its way through our landscape, teeming with trout for the ultimate fly-fishing adventure. Just up the road, the Island Lodge at Salmon Lake and the Lake House at Seeley Lake provide more opportunities to get out on the water.

Whether you strike out on foot, horseback, ATV or electric bike, you'll also find land-loving ways to commune with nature as well. And, of course, there's simply standing on the deck of your house or tent, breathing in the fresh Montana air and gazing up at our famous Big Sky.

A Place Where Privacy Knows No Bounds

At The Resort at Paws Up, guests experience the ideal setting for a feeling of togetherness. It's not a hotel. There are no long hallways. Instead, you and your family can spread out in your own luxury vacation home or safari-style tent.

Any time of year, you can choose from a selection of 28 homes, each nestled in the pine-tree forest and offering expansive views of rolling meadows and distant mountains. Many sit on four acres of pristine land. You'll enjoy private in-home dining delivered to your door and quiet spots for working and studying, plus an expansive fireplace and outdoor hot tub.

From May through mid-October, you can reserve an entire six-tent camp. You'll dine on fine cuisine prepared by your personal chef in your camp Dining Pavilion. You can relax by the fire at the end of the day. And you'll get quite used to asking your camping butler for help with your s'mores or for assistance planning your wilderness adventures.
